PEKING BUSY WITH GUESSES ON MAKE UP OF NEXT CABINET

Dr. Yen's Name Submitted To Parliamentarians

O.K. MAY FAIL

Political Traders Sure To Attempt To Drive Bargains

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, July 8.—A full meeting of the Cabinet this morning resolved to appoint Mr. Alfred Sze, Mr. Chu Chao-hsin and Mr. Wang Kuang-chi plenipotentiary delegates to the League of Nations Opium Committee.

(Reuter's Pacific Service).

Peking, July 8.—The President submitted the nomination of Dr. W. W. Yen as Premier to Parliament at 9.30 last night. As no official business is transacted on Sunday and the next meeting of Parliament will be on Tuesday the idea was to give Parliament as much time as possible to consider the nomintion before the next meeting. It is by no means certain, however, that the vote will be taken on Tuesday, as the political groups in the Houses are by no means unanimous in favour of Dr. Yen.

The Members of the Forty-Second Club are apparently willing to support Dr. Yen for the Premiership, if their own man can be made Minister of Finance, while the smaller groups on the Opposition side have each an axe to grind. The Government supporters, or Constitutional Party, appear confident, however, that Dr. Yen will find a sufficient majority in favor of his appointment, and already a list of probable members of the new Cabinet has been drawn up, it consists of the following:

Premier Dr. W. W. Yen
Minister of Foreign Agairs Dr. Wellington Koo
Minister of the Interior Mr. Chang Chih-tan
Minister of Agriculture Mr. Chan Kuo-kan
Minister of Justice Mr. Cheng Keh
Minister of War General Lu Chin
Minister of the Navy Admiral Li Ting-hsin
Minister of Education Dr. Wang Chung-hual
Minister of Finance Mr. Wang Keh-ming
Minister of Communications Admiral Wu Yu-lin.

It is expected that Mr. Tang Tsai-chang will be appointed Chief Secretary of the Cabinet.

NOTED INVENTOR IN ELECTRICAL FIELD SUCCUMBS

B. G. Lamme, Chief Engineer For Westinghouse, Dies In America

Cable advices received yesterday by the Shanghai offices of the Westinghouse Electric International Company brought word of the death of Mr. Benjamin G. Lamme, chief engineer of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company and one of the greatest engineers in all the electrical world.

Mr. Lamme, inventor of more than 100 appliances, many of which marked distinct forward steps in man's use of electricity, had been chief engineer of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company since 1907, and an employe of the firm for thirty-five years.

He was born in Springfield, Ohio, on January 12, 1864 and graduated from Ohio City University in 1888. The following year he entered the employ of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, and in the years since has had a leading part in the development of the electrical industry.

Mr. Lamme had more than 150 patents to his credit, among them some of the most important in the electrical field. Among his many achievements were the originating of methods for calculating designs of electrical machines; designing the first street car motor with single reduction gear; improvements in alternating current generator design which increased output by 50 percent; and the first successful induction motor with distributed type of winding. He designed the great polyphase generators for the Chicago World's Fair in 1892, the first 5,000 h.p. generators for Niagara Falls, and the first squirrel cage induction motor.

Mr. Lamme's greatest achievement was the synchronous converter for converting alternating into direct current. He also designed and developed the first single phase railway motors.

Almost every branch of the electrical industry is indebted to Mr. Lamme. He denied himself many honors owing to his extremely retiring disposition. His genius, however, had been widely recognised. He was one of the two members of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers elected to the U.S. Naval Consulting Board during the Great War, and he served as chairman of the inventions committee of that board. He was awarded the Edison Medal by the American Institute of Electrical Engineers for his inventions and development of electrical machinery, and was also awarded the Joseph Sullivan Medal by Ohio State University. While not a prolific writer, some of his papers are considered classics in the engineering world.

Mr. Lamme was a very studious man and spent a great deal of his time assisting students. Never having married, he made his home with his two sisters.

Chinese Official Here Gets Peremptory Telegram To Transfer Russ Consulate

Peking Orders Hsu Yuan, Commissioner Of Foreign Affairs, To Oust "Whites" Forthwith, And To Turn Property Over To Soviet

(Eastern News Agency)

Peking, July 9.—The Waichiaopu telegraphed yesterday to Mr. Hsu Yuan, Chinese Commissioner of Foreign Affairs in Shanghai, giving him strict instructions to remove the "white" Russian officials from the Russian Consulate and to transfer the Consulate to the Soviet delegate without delay.

(Eastern News Agency)

Peking, July 9.—M. Karakhan, Soviet Envoy in the Far East, filed a protest with the Waichiaopu yesterday against the attitude of Mr. Hsu Yuan, Chinese Commissioner of Foreign Affairs of Shanghai, and is said to have told Dr. Wellington Koo that the indifferent attitude on the part of Mr. Hsu Yuan towards the question of the transfer of the Russian Consulate tended to nullify the Sino-Russian agreement.

The Rosta News Agency today reports that although the Soviet Envoy, at the beginning of June, demanded the Waichiaopu to deliver the four Russian ships at Woosung, the Chinese Government not only still fails to execute the delivery but also that no reply has been given as yet to the Soviet Envoy in this respect.

The same news agency further says that the ships in question are still under charge of the Chinese Commissioner of Foreign Affairs at Shanghai, with General Gleboff's followers aboard and that these Whites are constantly selling important materials from the ships.

(Eastern News Agency)

Tokio, July 9.—Despite the fact that Mr. Yoshizawa, Japanese Minister to Peking, has, since his arrival here, been endeavoring to bring about an understanding with Cabinet Ministers relating to the Russo-Japanese negotiations in Peking, it appears that he has so far not been able to find any good opportunity to exchange views in full with all the Cabinet Ministers, as they are devoting themselves to the study of matters in connection with the present session of the Imperial Diet. But the session having already advanced more than half by this time, it is inferred that the Cabinet Ministers may find time to consider the Russian question in earnest and that in a few days some concrete arrangements will be made on this question between Mr. Yoshizawa and the Tokio Government.

BILLBOARDS ARE HIT IN PROTEST FROM AUTO CLUB

Motorists' Organisation Asks Council To Check Increase

A letter protesting against the increase in the number of billboards in the outlying districts of the Settlement has been sent by Messrs. Beck and Swann on behalf of the Automobile Club of China, to the Shanghai Municipal Council. The letter, and the reply by Mr. E. S. Benbowe-Rowe, acting Secretary of the Council, are published in today's issue of the Municipal Gazette.

"We are directed by our committee to state that numerous complaints have been received concerning the increase in the number of advertisement hoardings in the outlying districts of the Settlement", the letter from the Automobile Club reads. "We are to mention more particularly the ones at Blydenburg's turn (corner of Avenue Joffre and Siccawei Road), corner of Hungjao, Warren and Great Western Road Extension, and Jessfield Park vicinity.

"The Settlement can ill afford to make its roads less attractive than they already are and our committee feels that public spirited action is called for to bring about the removal of the hoardings; failing which other action could be considered with a view to rendering cost of maintenance of this form of advertisement prohibitive by taxation."

In reply, the Council writes that the desire to preserve such natural beauty spots as the vicinity of Shanghai can boast is one with which the Council is in entire sympathy, but the difficulty of devising practical means of resistance to the activities of traders who are ever seeking new and effective media of advertisement is one which is not singular to Shanghai but is well nigh universal in the world at large where surroundings of exceptional beauty are exposed to the like marring influence.

The Council's letter than points out that the hoardings specifically complained of, with the exception of that at Blydenburg's Turn, are outside the Settlement and therefore not subject to Municipal control. That at Blydenburg's Turn, the letter states, is not without a measure of artistic merit, and, kept as it is in a clean and presentable condition, is to this extent so free from offence that Municipal interference would not, it is felt, be reasonably justified.

"While the Council will respond sympathetically to any practical suggestions which you may be able, and are invited to advance," the letter concludes, "a solution of the problem which is presented in the preservation of local scenery from disfigurement, is more likely to be achieved by individual representations to advertisers on the part of public associations such as your own, appealing on the grounds set forth in your letter, and pointing out that unsightly hoardings are more calculated to incite resentment than to promote the sale of the commodities they advertise."

YOUNG CHINESE CONVICTED FOR BUND HOLD-UP

Youthful Highwayman Will Be Sentenced Next Week

The ambitious, "movie" inspired young Chinese who, equipped with a broken revolver the chambers of which were stuffed with foil tipped wads of paper to simulate bullets, tried to hold up a bank messenger carrying $6,000 in notes along the Bund Tuesday noon, was found guilty of attempted highway robbery by Assessor Martin and Magistrate Loh in the Mixed Court yesterday. The case was remanded one week for sentence.

Much praise was given yesterday to the Chinese Police Constable, No. 1155, who was on duty at the Customs jetty and who effected the capture. The accused, Tsong Tsung-sing, was a shroff employed by the Za Hsin Shun hardware and ship chandlers' firm at A-116 Broadway. His father is stated to be a highly respected merchant residing in the Chinese City. The man he attempted to hold up was a coolie employed by the Commercial Bank of China, 7 The Bund, who was on his way to the Chartered Bank at the time.

SUNDAY PICTORIAL

For nearly a century and a half, the house of Stanley has been striving to win the premier place in the Epsom Derby, the English racing classic of which one of the ancestors of the present Lord Derby was the originator. After much patient endeavor and the expenditure of a fortune, Sansovino, ridden by the young jockey Weston, won the classic for Lord Derby at Epsom this year. A "close-up" picture of the field will be reproduced in the coming issue of THE CHINA PRESS Sunday Pictorial, which, incidentally, furnishes an interesting contrast between English thoroughbreds and China ponies.

MACDONALD GETS ROUSING RECEPTION AT PARIS STATION

Has Three Hour Conference With French Premier

BID TEXT IS OUT

London Publishes Document In Form Of White Book

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, July 8.—Rarely has a British Prime Minister had a more cordial reception in France than Mr. Ramsay MacDonald had today. The vicinity of the station was densely crowded and the route to the Embassy was lined by spectators, cheering and shouting: "Good old Ramsay! Vive MacDonald!"

The two Premiers conferred at the Quai d'Orsay for three hours, after which Mr. MacDonald said "We are right in the middle of things."

(French Wireless through Reuter)

Paris, July 8.—The French press is loud in praise of the action of Mr. MacDonald in coming to Paris to smooth over by direct conversations with M. Herriot the divergences of view on the application of the experts' plan. The London Daily Telegraph declares that the action shows that the Franco-British Entente, which was talked about before the London Conference, really exists.

The draft of a memorandum in which France explains her views on the problem raised by the London Conference, was drawn up today and submitted this morning by the Cabinet.

(French Wireless through Reuter)

Paris, July 8.—Mr. MacDonald, who is suffering slightly from bronchitis nevertheless insisted on leaving for Paris. He told the press that the aim of his trip was to make sincere efforts to bring about a complete understanding between the two countries. The "Morning Post" writes: "Everything loses importance in face of this fact. The British public demands settlement of the difficulties with France. We ask our French friends to recall that Mr. MacDonald is going to Paris, not as leader of the Labor Party, but as representative of the British Empire."

In the course of statements in the House of Commons Mr. MacDonald said yesterday: "It is absolutely necessary for the atmosphere of suspicion between France and Britain to be cleared up. The moment has come to obtain from the Reich what its moral obligations truly impose upon it. We shall never attempt to reach an agreement on anything without the consent of France."

(French Wireless through Reuter)

Brussels, July 8.—M. Hymans, the Premier, speaking at a banquet of the foreign press, declared: "We have a defensive agreement with France in the event of unprovoked aggression by Germany. We hope that Britain will consolidate by radical promises the position of Belgium, whose frontiers are exposed. The era of anxiety is not closed.

(French Wireless through Reuter)

Paris, July 8.—The debate on foreign relations, which was expected in the Senate today, has been postponed till Thursday.

(Reuter's Service)

London, July 8.—The text of the British invitations to the London Conference has been issued in the form of a White Book.

The invitations open by referring to the unanimous decision of the Allies to adopt the Dawes report. Consequently the informal discussions between the Allied Premiers centered on exact measures to give effect to the recommendations rather than upon the principles of the report.

They then state that these recommendations impose upon Germany obligations altogether beyond what is laid down in the Peace Treaty. It is, therefore, necessary that they shall be embodied in a formal document, signed by the Powers responsible

Bob La Follette, Jr., Has His Father's Eyes

ROBERT M. LA FOLLETTE AND SON

In his son, Robert, Jr., Fighting Bob La Follette, Wisconsin's progressive Republican leader and Senator, has a perfect image, as to his eyes. This is the first year that the son has been able to render yeoman service politically to his father in a conspicuous way. Robert, Jr., attends political gatherings, including national conventions, keeps his eyes and ears open, and reports to his daddy thereon. Thus the Wisconsin Senator, who threatens to be a thorn in the side of the Republican machine, has four eyes rather than the average two.

LLOYDS REPORT SHOWS INCREASE IN SHIPBUILDING

1,465,000 Tons Under Construction In United Kingdom

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

London, July 9.—An improvement in shipbuilding is shown in Lloyd's Register shipbuilding returns for the quarter ended June 30. They show that 1,465,000 tons were actually under construction in the United Kingdom on June 30, the highest total since March 31, 1922. The tonnage commenced was 375,000, as compared with 227,000 in the corresponding period last year. The tonnage launched was 364,000, the highest total for 2½ years. Merchant tonnage actually being built abroad was 960,000, which is 35,000 tons more than on March 31.

(Reuter's Service)

London, July 8.—In the House of Commons today, replying to Sir William Davison (Conservative), Mr. Sidney Webb, the President of the Board of Trade, said that he understood that a Rotterdam shipbuilding company had obtained contracts for building certain vessels for British owners. He concluded that the fact that the Government were subsidising three vessels would account for any difference in the price with British construction quotations.

Scouts Isolated To Avoid Clashes With U. S. Sailors

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Manila, July 9.—San Roque, adjoining Cavite, has been quarantined for the purpose of avoiding clashes between the 600 Filipino employees of the Navy Yard who are on strike and American sailors.

Major-General G. W. Readix Commanding in the Philippines, left for Manila this morning from Baguio.

It is reported that another Scout Regiment is disaffected.

Szechuen General Seizes Salt Surplus For War Chest

(Dah Tong Years Earlom)

Peking, July 9.—The Branch Salt Administration at Szechuen has wired to the Central Administration, complaining of Yang Sen's action in seizing the surplus for military expenditure. The Central Administration is lodging a protest.

The pro-Sun Pao-chi Parliamentarians merely demands the retirement of Wang Keh-ming and will agree to pass upon a Wellington Koo Cabinet unconditionally. Chang Chi-tang, the candidate for the Interior portfolio, is using his influence with these solons for a compromise.

Because of the failure of the arrival of the records from Sinkiang on the Kobdo case and the delegates from Mongolia, the parley on Sino-Russian affairs will not open on July 15 as scheduled. A notice to this effect has been served on Karakhan, the Soviet Envoy.

Moscow Dubious About Conference

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Moscow, July 8.—Mr. Arthur Ponsonby's hopes, expressed in the British House of Commons last night, are not shared by the London correspondent of the Izvestia, who declares that the British delegates to the Anglo-Russian Conference have hitherto only placed obstacles in the way of agreement, and, while it is not true to suggest that a complete rupture is pending, the Conference is likely to be protracted.

American Envoy To Return To Berlin

DEADLOCK HOLDS

Hundredth Ballot Taken With Issue Obscure As Ever

(Reuter's American Service)

New York, July 9.—Mr. McAdoo released his delegates as the Convention continued voting in the 99th ballot. The Convention adjourned last night after the 100th ballot, which resulted as follows: Smith 351 votes, Davis 203 votes, McAdoo 190 votes Meredith 75 votes.

(Reuter's Service)

New York, July 8.—The managers for Governor Smith announce that he will withdraw, provided Mr. McAdoo withdraws. Senator Ralston's candidacy has been withdrawn owing to his again refusing to accept nomination.

(Reuter's American Service)

New York, July 8.—The feature of the latest ballots has been the steady decline of Mr. McAdoo and the rise of Senator Ralston. The 93rd ballot resulted as follows: Smith 355: McAdoo 314: Ralston 196.

(Reuter's American Service)

New York, July 8.—Mr. McAdoo has refused Governor Smith's offer of joint withdrawal. The 95th ballot resulted as follows: McAdoo 471½, Smith 267½, Davis 139¼.

COUNCIL FRAMES REGULATIONS ON PEDICAB SERVICE

Company Is Denied Right To Erect Private Parking Stands

Regulations for the newly installed pedicab service here and correspondence concerning ranking stations for the vehicles are published in today's issue of The Municipal Gazette.

The regulations cover both private and public pedicabs. Private pedicabs must be the property of the licensee or hired by the licensee for a period of not less than a month and cannot be plied for hire. They must carry the regulation lights and the license plates must be displayed in a conspicuous position at the front and back of the vehicle. Licensees are held for damage due to negligence of the driver.

The regulations for the public pedicabs, with regard to license plates and lights are of the same character. They provide further, however, that the driver be uniformed, shall not tout for hire or demand more than his legal fare and that no market produce, merchandise or other goods that are likely to soil the vehicle be carried unless wrapped or packed in such a manner as will effectively prevent such soiling.

The tariff rate for public pedicabs is fixed as follows: Engaged by distance, for one mile or less 10 cents; for each subsequent half mile or less 10 cents. Engaged by time, for one hour or less 50 cents, for each subsequent hour or less 40 cents.

In correspondence with Mr. A. A. Chaillet, secretary of the Shanghai Pedicab Service Co. Ltd., the Council declines to set aside for the pedicabs exclusively any parking spaces or to accede to the request for permission to the company to erect shelters or telephone booths on the public thoroughfares for the exclusive use of pedicabs. General speaking, the Council states, all rickshaw stands, indicated by boards, will be available for the use of the pedicabs when waiting for passengers.

CAPT. ROBINSON IS HONORED FOR QUAKE SERVICE

Courage And Seamanship Shown At Yokohama Again Rewarded

Captain Samuel Robinson, C.B.E., R.D., R.N.R., now in command of the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Canada, was on July 1 presented a silver service by Mr. E. Hamilton Holmes, British consul-general at Yokohama on behalf of the Salvage Association in recognition of the courage and seamanship displayed by the captain when his ship, the Empress of Australia, was endangered by fire in the harbor of Yokohama at the time of the September earthquake.

The presentation took place aboard the Empress of Canada, about 40 British residents of the Kwanto district being present, states the Japan Advertiser. Mr. Holmes' presentation speech was as follows:

"Captain Robinson, I have been desired by Sir Joseph Lowrey, secretary of the Salvage Association, to present to you on behalf of that Association a token of their recognition of your fine seamanship and cool judgment in ensuring the safety of your ship, the Empress of Australia, from the dangers which encompassed her on the terrible first of September last year—a day never to be forgotten in Yokohama.

"Menaced by fire from shore and sea, one of her propellors fouled by the cable of another vessel, only the finest seamanship could have brought her through that inferno to a place of safety—seamanship ably seconded by the devotion and implicit obedience of your officers and crew.

"The gallantry of the commander and the ship's company of the Empress of Australia will live in the glorious history of the Mercantile Marine—a history of which the record of the last ten years forms the most wonderful volume.

"But fine as was the feat which saved the Empress of Australia from destruction, this is not Captain Robinson's only record on those fateful days.

"We in Yokohama will never forget how he was the means of saving hundreds of precious lives; how tenderly the injured were cared for; the helpless succored; how all the resources of the ship were placed at the service of the refugees; the kindness and self-sacrifice of all the ship's company.

"The services of yourself, your officers and crew have been already recognised by the Salvage Association by a grant of money, but it is felt that a special mark of their appreciation in more permanent form should be awarded to yourself.

"Captain Robinson, it is my privilege and pleasure to ask you to accept this service of silver in appreciation of your splendid services in this port last September, of your fine handling of your ship, and of your gallantry asd humanity."

Captain Robinson responded to the address with a short and modest word of thanks.

for their execution. If Germany is to give her assent, she will be justified in expecting to receive, as a counterpart to the obligations she is assuming, a corresponding undertaking that the economic and fiscal sanctions imposed upon her shall be withdrawn.

"It would be undesirable", the invitations continue, "to give the instrument of agreement a form which would have the appearance of a treaty explicity modifying the Treaty of Versailles. The most convenient form would be a protocol, which might contain provisions covering the following points:—"

Fixing a date by which Germany would complete the legislation and other measures she is required to adopt, and a later date, perhaps a fortnight after the first date, when all economic and fiscal sanctions at present enforced in Germany should be withdrawn.

A stipulation establishing, in the event of flagrant failure on the part of Germany, an authority that will decide with regard to non-execution of the Treaty.

The engagements into which Germany will enter being beyond those laid down by the Treaty of Versailles, the British Government is of the opinion that the task of deciding the question of flagrant non-execution cannot be entrusted to the Reparations Commission, the functions of which are strictly determined by the Versailles Treaty. It is proposed that recourse should be had to the Financial Committee of the League of Nations. Differences with regard to interpretation of this stipulation should be referred to the International Court of Justice.

LONG SENTENCES FOR VENDORS OF BAD BANK NOTES

Long prison sentences were given by Assessor Martin and Magistrate Loh of the Mixed Court yesterday in the case of the four Chinese charged with being in possession of forged $5 notes of the Bank of China.

The case was prosecuted by Detective Chief Inspector Cruickshank, who stated that the bogus notes were sold at the rate of $40 good money for $100 bad. Mr. Reader Harris, for the bank, stated that the fourth accused, if he would, could give information as to the source of the spurious currency and asked that severe sentences be imposed.

The Court held that the first accused had assisted the police after his arrest and stated that he would be sentenced to one year's imprisonment, the second and third accused were sentenced to three years each and the fourth accused to five years. Eighty bad notes which were seized were ordered confiscated.

PLAY BY LOCAL WRITER GIVEN READING HERE

An appreciative audience gathered yesterday in the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Bena, 90 Jessfield Road, to listen to a reading of "The Flower Candle Wife," a play written by Mrs. Olivia Price, and produced in New York City a short time ago by the Morningside Players.

Miss Bailey, a member of the Theater Guild in New York, and an expert in the producing end of the spoken and silent drama, read the play, and her interpretation of it was so well done that the absence of scenery, props and the other accoutrements of the stage, was scarcely noticed.

The play, shortened by Miss ley in order to present it in time available, is the tragic y of the marriage of East and An American girl marries ung Chinese who has been a ent in an American college accompanies him to his an- tral home in China. He has en bidden home by the urgent mmons of his father, General a high official, who writes him that his grandfather, the head of the Li family, is dying. The boy, realising that his return to China will mean losing forever the American girl he loves, persuades her to come with him despite the fact that he is betrothed to a young Chinese girl who has been selected by his family as his bride years before.

There is the inevitable clash of Orient and Occident when they arrive and the girl is confronted with the tragedy of being the Number 2 wife, for the Li family, uring the death of the old andsire and knowing his desire r the union of his family with Sung family, have married s Americanised son by proxy to little Chinese girl.

Alice, the American wife, lieving that her Chinese husnd will annul this proxy arriage upon the death of his andsire, waits with commendle patience in the home where residises she is regarded as an trader. Upon the death of the man the little Chinese bride ent away but, not two months er, while the elaborate Chinese ourning ceremonies are still in ogress, the American girl is rrified to see the Chinese wife turning. Her husband cononts his family and asks the ason and Alice then learns that Chinese bride has come home bear a son to the Li family. ce, unable to remain, even hile she says she understands nd forgives her husband, leaves the house, and the play ends on high note of tragedy for the nhappy husband torn between his devotion to family ideals and passionate love for the American wife, kills himself.

New Department For Peking Finance

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, July 6.—The Ministry Finance has inaugurated a dement to deal with financial stions which will come up for ssion at the forthcoming o-Russian Conference. Losses tained by Chinese merchants hrough the depreciation in the alue of the rouble and tariff matters are among the subjects to be submitted to the department. Mr. Cheng Hsi-keng, a member of the staff of the Ministry of Finance, will probably be in control of the department.

PROMINENT FIGURES OF THE DAY'S NEWS.

Francine Larrimore, one of the best known young comediennes, who has pictured the flapper type on the stage, fooled her friends by getting married secretly 18 months ago to Con Conrad, musical comedy composer. But the news leaked.

John J. Davis, Secretary of Labor, who came to America in the steerage when eight years old, advocates a Federal law for registering all aliens. He asserts this would aid Americanization work among forigners.

Viscount Kijuhiro Ishii, who negotiated the Lansing-Ishii agreement, may be the next Japanese Ambassador to the United States. He now represents his country at London.

President William C. Prout, of the A. A. U., and manager of the final Olympic tryouts at Boston, says the point system for scoring at Paris, as announced, will impair America's chances for winning the contest. The new rule will allow first man in any event to be credited with ten points, while second man will receive five, in the Olympiad.

Hochow Notes

Hochow, Anhwei, July 1.—Word reaches us from Hanshan that two merchants were recently held up at the point of revolvers and robbed, between Hanshan and Tsao Kuan.

Just a few nights ago a boatman was shot and wounded in the vicinity of Fan Chiao, a small place between Hochow and Hanshan. Night travel between these two places has been suspended.

Within a radius of about ten miles surrounding Hochow there has been gathered one of the best wheat crops known for some years. At first it was thought the crop would be a failure that the rain came just in time to insure a heavy yield. This section has been replanted to rice, peanuts, beans and hemp.

During the past year there have been a number of fires destroying much property. More permanent and better buildings are rapidly being built in the place of those burned.

A large department store has now been opened upon the main street. The second foreign house is just completed and will be occupied by the Rev. and Mrs. Z. Chas. Beals.

In our travels through this part of Anhwei we are surprised and pleased to see that a revival of bridge repair and building is going on. We have seen about fifty bridges either just finished or in the process of construction. These bridges were mostly of stone. Upon inquiry we learned that some of these bridges are costing as high as eighteen hundred dollars.

Hochow itself seems quiet and peaceful. We now have one of the best Magistrates that this place has known for a long time. He sees his duty and is fearless in its execution. Opium dens are being closed and the owners brought to justice. This opium business flourished under some of the former Mayors but is being gradually being stamped out by the present man. He has made many enemies and is not favored by the City Elders but they dare not and cannot find reason to complain to Anking. He travels much throughout this territory and is thoroughly in touch with all the business interests. In his travels he goes as an ordinary man, thus creating no suspicions as to his identity and in this way getting first hand information which he otherwise would be unable to obtain. Eight men have been executed during his year as Magistrate. If the officials of the surrounding places would co-operate with the Hochow Official some of the bad characters would pass out of existance.

Legations Oppose Canton Salt Bureau

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, July 9.—The British, Japanese and French Legations have sent in another formal protest to the Waichiaopu regarding Dr. Sun Yat-sen's recent establishment of the Canton Salt Administration. The Consular Body in Canton have been instructed to do likewise.

Hitherto the staff of the Salt Gabelle in Kwangtung, Yunnan and Szechuen collected the revenues which for some years have been appropriated locally but Dr. Sun Yat-sen has now turned out the staff of the Salt Gabelle.

Comparison

It is obvious that where claims are made, comparison is inevitable. Comparison of the NEW Columbia Grafonola with ordinary gramophones has given it a place in music that no other gramophone has attained in so short a space of time. Comparison of the "NEW PROCESS" Records (without Scratch) with ordinary records reveals all the deficiencies of the latter.

To hear either one is to enjoy but one-half of a great achievement. To hear them in combination is to experience the sensation of a new experience. But to hear them in comparison with ordinary gramophones is to understand the enthusiasm of master musicians and music-lovers alike.

Anopheles mosquitoes, not blown by gales, can travel only about a mile from their breeding place, it is only necessary for each community to clean up its own territory. The insects live not more than a week when confined, though when free they may survive three weeks. These conclusions have been drawn from the experiments of M. A. Barber and T. B. Hayne in Arkansas rice plantations, where swarms of the mosquitoes were marked by spraying with a stain and a record of marked insects subsequently caught was kept.

A Scotsman attended a race meeting for the first time in his life and after a few races had been run, his friends persuaded him to put a shilling on a horse.

Very reluctantly and without conviction he tendered the coin to the bookmaker and awaited the result of the race. To his amazement his horse won at 10 to 1 and he dashed to collect his earnings. The bookie paid him 11s. and the Scot bit each one carefully. "Wot's up," demanded the bookie indignantly. "d'ye fink my money aint good?" "Na, na,ma, mammie," responded the Scotsman cautiously, "but I just wanted to mak' sure that the shilling I gave you wasna amang them."

It is sometimes dangerous to use European vocables in Asia where all possible combinations of vowels and consonants seem to be in use in the different languages. Forward tells of mistakes occurring in Korea by European words being mistaken for Korean. Thus a very angry German was discovered one day at the wharf shaking his cane at a Korean luggage porter. "Every time I say 'Come on,'" he explained, 'that coolie puts down my load." The explanation, which had never dawned upon the German, was that syllables "Come on" corresponded roughly to a Korean word that means "That will do" or "Stop." Another case was where an American was directing a gang of Koreans in shifting a boiler, after it had been lifted he went underneath to make some adjustment and seeing that it was not high enough, called to the men "Come on, now." The men immediately proceeded to put the boiler down on top of him, and only the prompt action of another American present kept him from losing his life.

On the motion of Signor Adolfo Carpi, whose name will be remembered in connection with the last opera company to visit Shanghai last winter, proceedings brought against him by Anastasia Shabouiros Potobani in the Manila court have been reopened. As previously reported, the plaintiff filed a suit against Carpi after a dispute over the ownership of the company's property. She claimed that she was the owner of the capital that her husband invested in the company, which was organised in Milan in 1921. It was further alleged that Carpi was merely her agent engaged to manage the compny during its tour in India, the Malay Peninsula and the Far East. In a decision delivered by the judge some time ago, the plaintiff was adjudged owner of all the properties of the company. Senator Alegre was appointed receiver.

Ichaya Kumagae Gives Fine Tennis Exhibition At Majestic; Big Crowd Out

Japanese Star Displays Great Skill In Matches With Wade And Canavarro, Winning Easily; Shows Rare Skill In Placing And Position Play

Tennis devotees flocked to the grounds of the Majestic Hotel yesterday afternoon to see Ichaya Kumagae, the great Japanese Internationalist and Davis Cup star, in action, and they were not disappointed. Kumagae displayed some great tennis, and gave unmistakable signs of even greater potentialities.

He appeared in three matches, two singles and one doubles, and was at all times master of the situation. Against Canavarro, the Portuguese player, he won easily, 6—3, 6—3, and against John Wade he won still more easily, 6—2, 6—1. In the doubles match Kumagae and Kumaharra defeated Wade and Canavarro 6—3, 8—6 and 6—4.

There was a great crowd present. In fact it seemed that every tennis player and fan in town was there, for the court was completely surrounded, the onlookers being a score deep on all sides. Most of them sat in the hot sun during the singles matches, but without minding it in the least. One of the world's greatest players was in action and the crowd was out to admire and to learn.

Kumagae, while not pressed, and never in any real danger, nevertheless gave a clever exhibition, revealing an assortment of all the strokes known to tennis.

The outstanding feature of his game was his accuracy, which at times seemed almost uncanny. Time and again he laid the ball, swiftly driven, inches from the lines. Throughout he seldom allowed his opponents to send more than one return from the same spot. On baseline or at the net he seemed equally at home. His service, while not unduly severe, was twisting and difficult, with the second ball, when it was necessary, practically as forcefully driven as the first. He spun them over the net with only an inch to spare, and with the speed of a bullet. On chances for kills he made few mistakes. He flashed all over the court, yet he was never hurried. There was no waste motion; no useless trying for impossible gets; no prolonging of volleys for a better chance.

Canavarro, the Portuguese player, put up a really creditable exhibition against a player of such skill and reputation, and in the doubles match he and Wade made things very interesting for the Japanese at times. The locals played Kumagae's partner whenever possible in this game, but the Japanese star couldn't be kept out of it altogether, and it was his greater skill that turned the tide in the end.

It was a splendid exhibition and those present were unanimous in expressing their appreciation.

HOT WEATHER IN PARIS INTERFERES WITH OLYMPICS

Attendance Poor; America Wins Weight Event, Britain The 800 Metre Run

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, July 8.—There was a poor attendance at the Stadium when the Olympic Games continued today, on account of the hot weather. It is noteworthy that Legendre (America), who yesterday broke the world's record in the Pentathlon long jump, is not participating in the individual long jump competition. He was not considered of sufficient class to represent the United States in it when the entries were sent in.

The 800-metre run final was won by D. Lowe (Britain). Martin (Switzerland) was second and Enck (America) third. The time was 1 min. 52 2-5 sec.

The long jump final was won by Hubbard (America) who made 7.445 metres. Gourdin (America) was second and Hansen (Norway) third.

In putting the weight the result was as follows: Houser (America) won with a put of 14 metres 99.5 centimetres. Hartraft (America) was second and Hills (America) third.

BASEBALL TODAY!

The Gallopers will take on the team from the U.S.S. Asheville this afternoon at the Recreation Grounds, beginning at 5 o'clock. The sailors have a good team and are confident they will be able to give Jerry Thatch's crew a stiff argument. Manager Gallop is anxious to have all candidates out for this game, in order to get in some good practice.

GOOD BOUTS ON PROGRAM AT THE CARLTON TONIGHT

Nybsky, Russian, Unable To Appear, But Other Boys Are Fast

Boxing fans are not to have the opportunity of seeing Battling Nybsky, the Russian, in action at tonight's boxing bouts, as previously announced. The Russian was taken suddenly ill day before yesterday and in consequence had to abandon his plans for the bout. His illness is not serious and he expects to be in tip top shape the following week.

In lieu of the cancelled Nybsky—Tigora match the management has made arrangements with Tommy Amer, champion of H.M.S. Achilles, now in port, to battle eight rounds with Gonzalo. Amer is said to be a fast and aggressive boxer, as he will have to be if he hopes to make any kind of a showing against Gonzalo. He weighs 129 pounds. The navy scrapper just recently returned from Australia, where he fought Holmes, Dow and Perker.

The main event on tonight's card—Domingo vs. Gabo—should be an exciting battle. The former will be remembered as the boy who gave the rope skipping exhibition at the Carlton last Thursday night, and it is needless to say, particularly to those who were present on that occasion, that if he can box as well as he skips the rope, it will be a sad party for Mr. Gabo. These two are flyweights.

The management believes this will be an unusually good card.

THOUSAND ATTEND CONFERENCE OF EDUCATIONALISTS

Delegates From All Parts Of China Meet At Nanking

The annual convention of the National Association for the advancement of Education closed yesterday at Nanking after a most successful session which opened on July 3. More than a thousand educators, representing practically all parts of China, were in attendance.

The conference gathered at the spacious and beautiful home of the Southeastern University, the grounds and buildings of which were thronged by the visitors. The chairman of the conference was Mr. P. C. Wang, president of the Law College, Nanking, while Mr. W. T. Tao acted as executive secretary. Among the speakers were such prominent men as Dr. Chang Po-ling, of Nanking University; Fan Yuen-lien, former Minister of Education; Ma Yen-t'sun, well-known economist; Chang Tai-yuen, Hsiung Hsi-ling and Dr. C. T. Wang.

Aside from the open meetings, there were numerous sectional meetings each day, the subjects up for discussion including primary education, middle school education, normal school education, higher education, political science, rural education, vocational education, education of girls, training in citizenship, physical training, educational administration, Scouting, and the teaching of history, Chinese literature, languages and other subjects. There was much discussion of the Popular Education Movement and it is felt that much valuable information has been collected as a result.

Representatives of Kao En-hung and Dr. W. W. Yen were present and spoke.

Membership of the association now includes 118 different schools and 1,471 educators and a steady growth is reported.

During the conference members of the association were entertained by both the military and civil governors of this province, while last Saturday evening the delegates assembled at Ginling College for the May Queen Musical which was repeated by the Methodist Girls' School.

TELEPHOTO FROM CLEVELAND CONVENTION.

NORTHWESTERN UNIVERSITY HAS FIRST GRADUATION

(China Press Correspondence)

Sianfu, July 2.—The first graduation exercises of the newly founded Northwestern University took place on July 1 in the presence of all the principal civil officials of the province. There were seventeen graduates in the law department, this department having been taken over from the old Northwestern University which was constituted about eight years ago and which survived as a Law School, now the law department of the new Northwestern University.

The magnificent compound, with its black laquered pillars and red laquered ceilings, old acacias everywhere, was decked in flags and flowers. The assembly hall, used for the first public gathering, proved to be quite the most spacious and beautiful hall in Sian. The graduates were dressed simply in Chinese fashion for which some of us were distinctly grateful. The hideous cap and gown imported from the west were replaced by the more suitable white gown and black silk short top-coat.

After music and announcements President Fu Bei-chin of the University distributed the diplomas. Then followed congratulatory and advisory speeches by the Governor Liu Chen-hua, Dean of the Law Department Tsai, Dean of Arts Wu, Commissioner of Education Ma Ling-fu and a few of the guests. The governor's speech, a strong practical plea for technical education was quite diagnistic of his attitude towards education. He is interested in the development of the province and so pushes forward education as best he can, considering lack of funds and lack of proper leadership.

The first term of the Northwestern University has been passed successfully and with high credit to those who are responsible. Scholastic standards have not been lowered to make the school more popular. Discipline, that thing that is so rare in some schools at present, is strict as any English schoolmaster could desire. Just before graduation one of the class was found to have "cribbed" on the final examination, and was summarily dismissed with full explanation given the action was taken in such a way that not a student voice was raised against it, which is a distinctly healthy-minded sign.

Engineering Society Elects New Officers

The Engineering Society of China in annual general meeting has elected the following officers and councilmen to serve during the next year:

FLOOD IN HUNAN

(Dah Tong News Bureau)

Changsha, July 9.—Governor Chao Heng-ti has made a general appeal to the prominent Hunanese for famine relief contribution irrespective of their politics. The men approached included Hsiung Hsi-ling, Yang Tu and Chow Tseng-ling.

The flood along the Chu-Ping Railway threatens to wash away the rails. The authorities in their report to the Ministry of Communications ask for permission to dig extra trenches to release the water.

Navy Y. Has Last Dance Of Season For American Gobs

A gala occasion was made of the dance for sailors of the United States Navy ships at the Navy Y. M. C. A. last night, inasmuch as it was the last to be given until the fleet returns here in the fall.

Sailors from the ships of the Rainbow Division, the Ashville, Elcano and Finch to the number of about 200 and half as many young ladies attended. Unfortunately, the U.S.S. Isabel was obliged to leave port for target practice and the men of her crew were therefore unable to attend.

The Navy "Y" hall was gayly decorated with all of the naval signal flags and flags of many nations, and the breeze from many electric fans swayed the wisteria that hung in clusters all about the ball room and kept the colored balloons tossing about the heads of the dancers. A polar effect was given by having fans blow air against a great cake of ice, and between dances, standing room in this "Arctic zone" was eagerly sought.

The jazzy orchestra was composed of Messrs. G. Imerlishvilly, A. Alaquin, M. Ferras and C. Britto. Cakes and iced lemonade were served and photographs were taken.

The United States navy vessels now in port here will leave shortly for Chefoo to join the rest of the fleet in summer headquarters. The Navy "Y" dances will be resumed when the fleet returns, about the first of October.

Glasgow Cenotaph; New Master Of Balliol; "Auld Nance Tinnocks"; Loans For Scottish Fishermen

(From Our Own Correspondent)

Glasgow, June 3.—Today Earl Haig unveiled the Glasgow War Memorial which has been erected in George Square. The Cenotaph itself with the supporting sculpture work is of grey granite and stands out in fine relief against the surrounding drab colored, aged stone work. It is a massive structure on simple lines on the front of which is inscribed the following simple eloquent message.

PRO PATRIA 1914-19

"To the immortal honor of the officers, non-commissioned officers and men of Glasgow who fell in the Great War this memorial is dedicated in proud grateful recognition by the City of Glasgow".

For the unveiling ceremony the whole of the eastern portion of the square was reserved for official purposes—spaces being allotted to a number of bereaved relatives—to Town Council and other officials. The Magistrates, Deputy Lieutenants and others occupied a platform in the center and regimental contingents were placed on each side of the Cenotaph.

Lord Provost Montgomery in calling on Earl Haig to perform the unveiling ceremony referred to the appropriateness of asking one who was a Scotsman and the leader of our Armies in the field.

Earl Haig in formally unveiling the memorial said he hoped that it would remind us that when the ultimate test comes all men of Scottish race are comrades and brothers owing a common duty to our long and glorious past. In conclusion he said:

"I unveil this memorial to the enduring memory and lasting glory of brave men and women of Glasgow who gave their lives for the honor and safety of their country and that their countrymen might live in peace."

The proceedings concluded with the dedication prayer offered by the Rev. Dr. L. MacLean Watt, Glasgow Cathedral.

NEW MASTER OF BALLIOL

Natives of Glasgow, graduates of Glasgow University and Scotsmen generally, will appreciate the honor which has recently been conferred on Professor A. D. Lindsay of Glasgow by his appointment to the position of Master of Balliol College, Oxford.

A strong bond of union has always existed between Balliol and Scotland and especially is this the case with Glasgow from university talented students—through the munificence of John Snell who established the Snell exhibition—have been enabled to proceed for a few years to the Southern College.

This is the second time in thirty years that a Professor of Moral Philosophy in Glasgow University has been elected by the Fellows of Balliol to be Master of the College. In 1893 Edward Caird—himself a distinguished student of Glasgow and Balliol and later Professor of Moral Philosophy at Glasgow—became Master in succession to Benjamin Jowett. Today Professor Lindsay is the cause of history repeating itself.

A son of the late Principal Lindsay, of the Glasgow College of the United Free Church, Mr. Lindsay was educated at Glasgow Academy and Glasgow University, where in 1898 he took the honors degree in Humanity. He subsequently proceeded to University College Oxford, where he distinguished himself. Leaving Oxford in 1902 he spent a number of years, first as lecturer under Sir Henry Jones at Glasgow and later under Professor Alexander in Manchester.

In 1906 he was elected Fellow and Tutor in Balliol and with that began his association with the College which has culminated in his latest appointment.

From 1917-1919 he served on the staff of the Labor Dept., in France, his final rank being Lieutenant-Colonel, Deputy Controller of Labor. In 1922 Prof. Lindsay who was then in his 44th year returned to Glasgow University, where in June, he was appointed to the Chair of Moral Philosophy rendered vacant by the death of Sir Henry Jones.

During the time that he has occupied the Chair in Glasgow, Prof. Lindsay has identified himself with the Labor movement and has spoken frequently on questions of Political Theory to meetings organised by Labor, Socialist and Trade Union organisations. Prof. Lindsay is also deeply interested in the Workers Education Authority—a body which strives to provide extra-mural instruction by University lecturers for those whose desire for learning is unfortunately not matched by their opportunity to obtain it.

It is a remarkable coincidence that at Glasgow and Balliol Prof. Lindsay studied under Jones and Caird respectively—that he has assisted each and succeeded each.

The new Master of Balliol inherits a great tradition, though certainly not greater than that which adorns the Chair of Moral Philosophy at Glasgow, and the headship of a college which has such a long history offers opportunities of educational and social service which Prof. Lindsay is not likely to neglect.

"AULD NANCE TINNOCKS"

Admirers of Scotland's National Poet the world over will be interested in the account of the latest benefaction of the Glasgow and District Burns Association. At Mauchline, Ayrshire, they have accomplished a splendid bit of work in preserving old buildings, indissolubly linked with the name of the Poet, and converting them into comfortable homes for deserving aged people.

Under a scheme initiated some nine years ago the association first acquired the house in which Burns and Jean Armour began their married life, and a portion of this is now occupied as homes, while another portion is utilised as a museum and subsequently the number of homes was increased by the acquisition of the adjoining property known as Dr. McKenzie's House. The scheme has now been brought to completion by the opening of additional homes in the building known as "Auld Nance Tinnocks", immortalised by Burns in "The Holy Fair".

LOANS FOR FISHERMEN

Everyone is agreed that the action of the Government in providing in the Supplementary Estimates for loans to Scottish fishermen is one or those timely measures which will do much to aid an industry that has never properly recovered from the effects of the War. Mr. Adamson, Scottish Secretary is to be specially congratulated for the part he has played.

£150,000 is to be set aside for the purchase of new, or repair of damaged, gear; five thousand nets will be purchased at once so that many fishermen for whom the prospect seemed hopeless will be able to go to sea immediately and thus benefit from the trade that will inevitably result from the increased facilities for trade wth the continent.

Loans are to be given up to 50 percent of the amount required on a 5 percent interest basis, the principal to be repaid within three years. Exceptional cases, such as those of young men who have had no opportunity to accumulate will be dealt with otherwise.

It is the intention of the Government after the present emergency is over to encourage greater co-operation among the fishermen so that they will be able to overcome exceptional adverse circumstances in the future.

"THE UNSPEAKABLE SCOT"

It is an accepted fact that no one enjoys a joke against the Scot better than the Scot himself and everyone knows that all the Aberdeen stories are made in Aberdeen, wherefor it is practically certain that the latest volume of vaporings of an unhinged English journalist will sell as only bargains will among Scots the world over.

Mr. T. W. H. Crosland who achieved a certain notoriety for his book, "The Unspeakable Scot" has been at it again and in his latest work (if it can be dignified with the name) he has opened the "sluice-gates of his wrath."

"Pop goes the Weasel" (the Scot is the Weasel) is full of the parochial fervor which one associates with Mr. Crosland's writing. On the theory that the most perfervid patriots in a country are usually aliens or persons of foreign extraction Mr. Crosland might easily be both.

In a book of nearly 250 pages filled with swipes at the "Scotch" it is only possible to quote a phrase here and there from a mass of occasionally humorous but mostly vulgar and gratuitous insult.

"There is nothing a Scotchman can do (unless it be killing fleas) that an Englishman cannot do better. It is in mediocrity that the poor devil excels. He makes

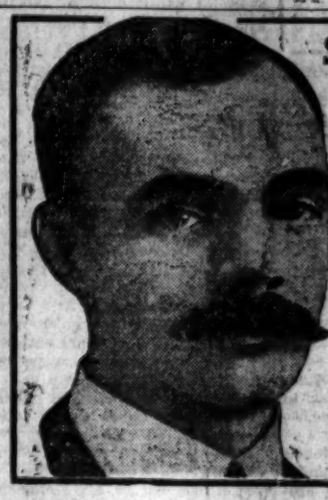
Stubborn Case of Boils & Pimples

"Can honestly say I am quite cured"



Our portrait is of Mr. W. BRIDAL, 27, Strand Street, Newtown, Mountain Ash, South Wales, Great Britain, who writes:

"It gives me great pleasure in telling you about the remarkable cure I found in Clarke's Blood Mixture for boils and pimples. After having suffered from time to time from both, and trying all kinds of so-called remedies, and being under doctor's treatment, I thought of Clarke's Blood Mixture, having tried it years ago with success for a similar complaint. After taking one bottle it seemed to drive them out, and after the second bottle I found a decided improvement, and continuing with your Mixture I can honestly say I am quite cured."

Predicts Longer Life For Americans

Dr. Charles H. Mayo Sees Scriptural Promise Fulfilled

(The big health problem of America lies on the mental side rather than the physical. Such is the conclusion of Dr. Charles H. Mayo, noted surgeon.

"Man will soon achieve the span of life allotted to him by the Scriptures," he said, in discussing the outlook for Americans of the future. "Already man lives to an age past fifty. Compare this with his expectation of life a century ago. In 1816 the average was only twenty years. In another quarter century, maybe a little longer he should be close to the threescore and ten promised by the prophet.

"Medical science is directly responsible for this increasing length of life. We have learned how to prevent or mitigate so many diseases that mankind has ceased to die in the mass. We are dying individual deaths now, from causes peculiar to ourselves and largely controllable by ourselves. The study of children and their preservation in the first few years has extended the average period of life to its present figure. As mankind examines its ailments the course of life will be lengthened to the promised threescore and ten.

"The better understanding of health has resulted in our rapidly filling the world with a constantly growing multitude. According to one view, we should seek to complete this filling process as fast as possible. I am not in sympathy with that view. Life is valuable for the fine things that can be created out of it. But if we have a world made up largely of life in low forms we shall not progress far.

"New Zealand has the finest race of men in the world today, physically and mentally. They have been drawn mainly from British stock, and the immigration is highly selective. The New Zealanders live out of doors to a great extent, and their lives have few artificial elements. They are strong and healthy, clean of mind and body, and far outrank their progenitors in the British Isles."

MENTAL DANGER

Dr. Mayo was asked if he saw dangers of mental deterioration in American life.

"Well, we have doubled the number of insane in thirty years," he answered. "In a period when medicine has made such splendid progress as a curative for the body we find insanity increasing at a surprising rate. The study of mental afflictions has been just as intensive as the study of bodily afflictions, and, broadly speaking, progress has been equal. Still the number of deficient or deranged persons is larger than ever. This leads to but one conclusion—that insanity has grown with our civilisation.

"I might say that insanity is a peculiar result of civilisation. We have few really insane persons among the primitive races. But the moment that man begins to worry he imperils his mind. We may see this exemplified in the Southern negroes. Among them under conditions of slavery, where they had little thinking to do for themselves, insanity was almost unknown. But freedom and the economic struggle have resulted in a perceptibly high rate of mental diseases among the blacks in this country. They are much more susceptible to insanity than the natives of Africa.

"It is not this race alone that gives evidence of the pressure imposed by civilisation. Seven percent. of all the people in the United States have the mentality of a child of nine. An additional 15 percent. measure up to the eleven mark. The two classes represent 22 percent. of our whole population. Surely this is a condition that we should examine with care in looking to the future."

PREDICTS CANCER CURE

Dr Mayo has been a student of cancer for years and is looked upon as one of the world's first authorities in this branch of science.

"At a moment when practically all of the major diseases are coming under control, cancer is increasing at the rate of 2½ percent. a year," he said. "As yet we have been unable to isolate definitely the cancer germ in the human body, but many minds are at work on the problem and I am confident success is just ahead, perhaps within a year or two.

"We must not expect too much at once. If the germ were definitely discovered tomorrow, it would be some time, maybe five or six years, before we could use that discovery to reduce cancer appreciably. It is not enough merely to find the germ. We must then devise methods of combating it. The process cannot be hurried, despite our eagerness. The fight has gone forward for years, and we must be prepared for many disappointments before success. But I am assured that we will find the way and thus conquer the last great malignancy which preys upon man."

Dr. Mayo said that about 500,000 people a year die of cancer in civilised lands, including 100,000 Americans. Although the rate of growth is increasing, certain forms of cancer have been brought under better control, and there is promise of still further progress in this direction. Publicity, said Dr. Mayo, has done much to help.

As an instance of the progress in methods of control, Dr. Mayo said that a few years ago 80 percent. of the women afflicted with cancer of the breast did not obtain medical aid until the disease had assumed a malignant form. But the percentage today is less than fifty and is steadily descending, owing almost entirely to earlier examinations encouraged through publicity and a wider popular understanding of the disease. Dr Mayo added that the conception of cancer as incurable had long been dissipated. Three-fourths of cancerous afflictions could be remedied if treated in time. He prescribed prompt examination as the first essential in attacking the problem.

DIFFICULTIES TO OVERCOME

"We have seen what can be done through education in the reduction of tuberculosis," he said. "A few years ago this disease was gaining at a rate which earned it the name of 'the white plague.' Recently it has been reduced by 29 percent., as a result of publicity in the first instance and intensive treatment in the second. What has been accomplished in tuberculosis work can be achieved again in the fight against cancer. But many difficulties must be encountered before we check this disease.

"Our first and most pressing requirement is an adequate blood test. Under present conditions it is possible for a person to be afflicted with cancer for some time, even in a malignant condition, without indisputable evidence of its presence in the blood. At least we have no test which will determine the fact.

"The X-ray has contributed largely to a better understanding of cancer. By its aid we are improving our methods of deciding when a case can be best approached by operation. Radium and other recognised treatments also have gone far to help in the struggle. But all of these agencies fall short of the needed method or remedy which will eradicate cancer. No remedy, of course, will prove effective where the tissues have deteriorated past repair. But, I speak broadly of attacking cancer in its incipient stages. No disease can be conquered when it has torn down the system.

FOODS TOO REFINED

Asked about the causes of cancer, Dr. Mayo turned to another page in the full volume of his experience. He mixes potions with philosophy and has a theory of life that runs through all of his observations.

"Continuous overeating is the bane of our modern existence," he said. "Our foods are not well adapted to our condition of life. In a primitive state man ate largely to obtain sufficient sustenance. He lived to a considerable degree on foods in their natural state. Many of those are not palatable to us. We have refined them and 'improved upon nature' until we eat few things which include their natural husks, or what I may term the 'trash' that is combined with the more choice bits in the workshop of nature.

"I have some prize cows at home that illustrate many a lesson. I could feed one of them nourishment enough for a day on food that I could hold in my two hands. But each cow spends the best part of the day acquiring that same quantity of nutriment. In addition to it the cow consumes a large share of nature's 'trash.' So the cow remains healthy and supplies excellent milk. Deprive her of the 'roughage' that nature intended that a cow should eat, and the cow would die.

SLOW POISONING

"The ordinary man is much tougher than any cow and he sustains life under greater difficulties with amazing fortitude. But he cannot get along entirely on refined foods. When he tries it his system balks, soon becomes clogged, and before long his whole working apparatus is deranged. As a people we are slowly poisoning ourselves with undigested elements left over by wrong foods and lack of sufficient labor. It is a late day to say that we do not work enough to afford our bodies proper relief, but it is none the less true."

There is a theory widely accepted that vegetables are much the best sort of food, but Dr. Mayo subjected this to a scientific reservation, saying that it was possible to eat too largely of vegetables; that the digestive process was just the same as with a diet of meat or fowl.

"The commonest form of cancer in women attacks the breast," he explained, "but in man it is the stomach. One-third of all men suffering from cancers are afflicted in this way. No, I would not say that men are constitutionally the greater eaters, but the fact remains. Now, as to meat or vegetables causing or counteracting cancer, I think we may decide that neither is at fault when used in the proper quantities. Laplanders and Eskimos, living largely on meat and eating almost no vegetables, seldom have cancer. Neither is the disease common among the natives of hot climates, where vegetables constitute the larger part of the daily food.

BACTERIA ISOLATED

"Cancer is distinctly a product of civilisation. We have traces of it from the earliest history of the Egyptians. Apparently it has increased steadily ever since until it now is in the major class. It is one of the major ailments of which we know little. But we are learning a great deal about it these busy days. Irwin Smith of Washington has succeeded in isolating the cancer bacteria in plants. These bacteria can be removed and injected into other plants and cancer will result. He has also succeeded in producing cancerous plants by means of chemical irritation.

"These matters are of the first importance. They enable us to study the known bacteria of cancer in plants. It may be but another step to the discovery of the germ in the human body."

Cancer is common among certain animals, notably dogs. Many an old dog of 9 to 15 years becomes afflicted with cancer, sickens and dies, and his master never suspects the cause. Dr. Mayo added that the study of cancer in mice was another important line of investigation. He explained that cancer could be produced in a mouse by rubbing one spot daily for a hundred days with a solution of tar. Gradually the irritation increases until a cancer appears in all of its familiar malignity. The mouse, in common with man, endeavors to accommodate its physical structure to this burden and manages to live for a time despite the affliction. But gradually the growth spreads and causes death. As two years is a long span of life for a mouse, it is possible in mice to follow the development of the cancer more rapidly than in human beings.

DIET BASIS OF HEALTH

In repeating a warning against excessive indulgence in food, Dr. Mayo said that the person greatly overweight was more likely to develop a cancerous condition than one of normal body, or even of excessive thinness.

"The man who is 50 years old and fifty pounds over weight is a much more likely subject for cancer than the same man of average weight," he remarked. "This does not mean that all fat people will develop cancer. It is just that the system is in a condition where it is more generally susceptible. I think the same thing may be said of heredity. It is doubtful if any person ever directly inherits a cancer, but it undoubtedly is true that children may receive from their parents certain tendencies which are likely to induce cancer.

"We must look beyond the individual and to civilisation itself for the roots of cancer. The conditions of life have been altered so greatly in the last half century that we unconsciously prepare a fertile soil for diseases such as this. When we ride in an automobile or go upstairs in an elevator we are departing from the natural means of getting to our destination. By just that much we deprive our muscular system of its proper functions. In time this denial means flaccid muscles and reduced power. Then our internal machine slows down and we begin to talk of pains. Beware of those pains. They may indicate the first signs of cancer. Prompt examination is the unvarying rule every person should follow."

Dr. Mayo sees a further large increase in the human race as inevitable. He emphasised that the average of life had been extended not less than fifteen years since 1870. What this increase will mean unless mental standards are raised, when the 1,500,000,000 people now on earth become twice that number, he would not undertake to judge. But he said it was true beyond question that every race of the earth would be materially enlarged in the next few decades.

Pointing to the lessons of common observation, he said that the least intelligent were the most numerous and were rapidly increasing, and that unless the mental average rises rapidly, the consequences will provide a sociological problem of world import.

Despite his achievements and his fame, Dr. Mayo has the look and the air of an old-fashioned country physician. He comes to the city seldom and stays no longer than he must. He expresses a profound sympathy for the sufferings of humanity and has one rule for happiness.

"The only real happiness comes from labor," he says. "When a man loves his work he is happy indeed."

FATAL TO GOOD LOOKS

Thin Blood and Nervousness Will Quickly Wreck Health

Pale people are generally nervous. Thin blood not only affects the complexion by robbing cheeks and lips of colour, but it also weakens the nerves by depriving them of nourishment.

When you have so far lost control of your nerves that you "fly to pieces" over the least little noise or excitement it is high time to build up your blood. The drawn look, the sunken eyes, the deepening lines about the mouth and forehead, the loss in weight, are plain signs that the nerves and the body are being poorly nourished.

Don't put off taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills any longer. You may be nearer a collapse than you think and these Pills have been world-renowned as the most perfect blood and nerve restorative known to Medical Science for as many years as you can look back upon. Therefore you can safely give them your confidence.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are a specific in such diseases as anaemia, rheumatism, indigestion, nervous debility and neuralgia, also for the special ails and ills of the weaker sex. Of chemists, or direct from Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., 60 Kiangse Road, Shanghai, $1.50 per bottle, $8 for 6 bottles post free.

Notice Given By the Trade Mark Bureau, Peking.

Notice is hereby given. By a former notice given by this Bureau the time limit prescribed in Article 4 of the Trade Mark Law was extended to the 30th day of June 1924. Such time limit will soon expire, but, in consequence of applications having been made by various merchants foreign and Chinese for a further extension of the period, this Bureau, acting for the benefit of the merchants, has in conformity with the rules of law petitioned the Ministry of Agriculture and Commerce for a further extension of six months up to the 30th of December 1924. Sanction for such further extension has now been given by the Ministry of Agriculture and Commerce and notice thereof has been given respectively through the said Ministry of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, the Custom Department, various public offices in the provinces, and all Industrial Commissioners for the information of merchants, foreign and Chinese. In addition thereto a general notice thereof is hereby given.

FINANCIAL AND TRADE ARTICLE

TIENTSIN HAS SURPRISING CONTRASTS IN YEAR'S TRADE

Import Figures Are Very Low While Exports Are High

ODD CONDITIONS

Several Abnormal Factors Are To Blame For Situation

Striking contrasts are revealed in the trade of Tientsin during the last fiscal year, according to a recent report of the Chinese Maritime Customs. While imports were decidedly unsatisfactory, exports were highly satisfactory.

In view of the favorable conditions attending the export trade, more especially during the latter part of the year, and of the consequent impetus to the purchasing power of the port, so absolutely a contradistinction would appear to be out of line with economic laws, and the question immediately arises as to why imports were restricted with money pouring into the port. An investigation shows a number of reasons.

MUCH CAUTION

Throughout the year imports suffered a state of indecision, with caution as the predominating feature. The piece goods market was in a sorry condition. The trade, which had been successfully weaned from the supply through Shanghai to direct orders abroad, has now largely reverted to the former channel. Large orders and foresight on the part of Chinese merchants have given place to the satisfying of actual requirements on the hand-to-mouth principle.

Everywhere confidence in the piece goods market appears to be shaken, and the memory of the 1920 debacle remains indelible. Furthermore, the high prices demanded by Manchester, and the destruction of 25 percent of Japan's spindles in the earthquake gave impenetrable uncertainty to future prospects.

Business in regard to other importations, although not up to expectations, was conducted on somewhat sounder lines, with the view to eliminating embarrassing credits, and it is to be hoped that, as an outcome of past experience, the fettered import market is passing through a phase that will finally terminate in an all-around healthier tone.

A degree of blame for unrealised expectations is again laid to an obscure political condition and to brigandage in the interior. These obstacles, although serious in themselves, in that they restrict the freedom of trade, instil caution into orders abroad, enhance the speculative factor in trade, and impede the even liquidation of stocks, do not constitute the chief factor.

The needs of the country must be gratified, and its products must play their part in satisfying the world's demand; so that the main issue must be sought in market prices and the circumstances affecting these. World conditions are as yet far from normal.

NET VALUE OF TRADE

The net value of the trade at Tientsin for the year amounted to Hk. Tls. 238,407,938, as against Hk. Tls. 244,516,332 for the preceding year, which, taking the value to represent the volume of trade, indicates a decline in the trade of the port by Hk. Tls. 6,108,394. By a comparison of the values for the last two years, it is shown that the net value of foreign imports for the year shows a decline of Hk. Tls. 20,098,700, but that this does not truly represent the decline in actual trade is manifested by the fact that the 1922 values were inflated by an excess of some Hk. Tls. 10,500,000 over those of 1923 owing to the predominance of articles imported for non-commercial purposes and enjoying privileged duty-free treatment. By subtracting this amount from the deficit, an actual decrease of some 9½ million taels in the volume is revealed, which, taken in conjunction with the enhanced volume both of the export trade and of Chinese imports, shows a virtual augmentation of the total volume of the trade proper for 1923. However, the figures show that whereas the increased volume of the export trade produced a proportionate increase in the export revenue, the decreased volume of the foreign import trade shows, after mutual adjustment of the extraordinary values of duty—free articles a decrease by Hk. Tls. 395,000.

OPINION DIVIDED ON LEGALITY OF DUTY ON GIFTS

American Lawyers Disagree As To Whether Tax Is Constitutional

New York, June 8.—Sentiment of lawyers and tax experts of banks in the financial district was solidly against the provisions of the revised tax law, which seek to impose a tax on transfers by gifts, but there appeared a division of opinion as to whether or not the provisions are constitutional. Although declining to make formal statements until they had studied the question at length, a number of nationally known lawyers said they "doubted very much the legality of the [illegible]."

G. T. Vought of the law firm of White and Case, 14 Wall Street, a specialist in tax law, said:

"I agree quite generally with the opinion expressed by Charles Warren in a letter published this morning in The Times, and it would appear that the plan for imposing a tax on transfers by gifts would not be legal unless apportioned in accordance with the population of the several States. This law, as I understand it, would impose a direct tax, and a direct tax unless properly apportioned clearly would be unconstitutional.

"A very important question has been raised by the new law and officials of trust companies are giving it serious study; are revocable trusts, under this law, going to be made subject to tax; are these to be considered as gifts and thereby subject to the gift tax?

"A precedent for those who contend that the present law is unconstitutional is to be found in the case of Pollock versus the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company. This was an income tax case and in a decision handed down by the Supreme Court of the United States in 1894 it was found that the income tax law, then newly passed and assuming the position of being the first peacetime income tax measure in this country, was unconstitutional because it was not apportioned in accordance to the population of the respective States. The present gift tax would appear to fall in the same category. In the case of income taxes, provision was made for their legality through constitutional amendment, but there has been no amendment as yet affecting the stains of a tax on transfers by gift.

"Proponents of the tax will argue, among other things, that the Supreme Court has already sustained the contention that a tax is legal on a gift transfer made in contemplation of death, and while no such application has been made to the question of such a tax on a special privilege it would appear that the present tax in question would apply to a privilege of a nature that is properly taxable.

"The theory of sovereign State's rights again must be taken into consideration, and here again the question arises as to whether the sovereign possessing authority to impose such a tax is the United States or the particular State in which the individual may reside."

Edward S. Seidman of Wollman and Wollman, 20 Broad Street, said:

"In the absence of close study of this question, it is impossible for me to make a positive statement one way or the other, but it is patent that the question raised is one of vital importance and one that involves the same questions that are appearing in the capital tax law of the State of New York and also in the challenge of legality of the bonus law.

"Whether the new gift tax is an excise tax or a direct tax is the fundamental question to be considered. Direct taxes are subject, of course to the rule of apportionment, and if this is a direct tax it is obvious that it must be unconstitutional; but the question can be raised as to whether this is not an excise tax, consisting not of a tax on an obligation itself, but rather on its use or service. The latter point is one of several that may be brought forward, and until very close study has been made of the law it would be unwise to attempt a judgment on its constitutionality."

Judge Alton B. Parker, 61 Broadway, said: "I haven't studied the question and would not care, off hand, to issue a statement." John W. Davis, former Ambassador to Great Britain, whose offices are at 15 Broad Street, declined to issue a statement for the same reason. At the offices of Cadwalader, Wickersham and Taft, 40 Wall Street, it was suggested that the question has so many ramifications that deep study would be necessary before any of the firm's members would care to go on record regarding the legality of the provisions embodying the tax on transfers by gifts.

Dotted Lines show where Rubber is cultivated

RUBBER PRODUCTS THAT ARE UNIFORMLY GOOD

A little over 15 years ago the United States Rubber Company started their own rubber plantations in Sumatra and the Malay Peninsula. They did this that they might always be certain of securing crude rubber unvarying in quality.

Today the United States Rubber Company owns 172 square miles of rubber plantations and 5,000,000 carefully selected rubber trees under the constant care and supervision of a corps of tree experts.

Recently this company announced two revolutionary advances in the art of rubber manufacture: The New Sprayed Rubber and The New Web Cord.

The first of these ensures your getting rubber articles made from the purest virgin rubber ever produced. A rubber with all its natural properties unimpaired by the addition of smoke residues and chemicals. The second advance means a cord tire of a quality even more consistent than ever before.

United States Rubber products always have been leaders in the rubber industry. Now—due to these two startling discoveries, you can be assured of rubber products that are more than ever uniformly good.

PETRIFIED FOREST AREA

Arizona's Age-Old Trees Reveal Brilliant Coloring

Not far from the old National Trail in Arizona is the most remarkable petrified forest in the world. It is a few miles south of the town of Adamana on the Topeka and Santa Fe Railroad, a short distance west of the New Mexico boundary line. In fact, a part of the old Trails Road runs through an edge of the forest which was set aside in 1906 by President Roosevelt as a national monument. That act stopped the desecration of the scenic forest as many trunks of the beautifully colored petrified trees had been carried away. Several car loads were sent to a concern in South Dakota and the blocks were polished to reveal their wonderful coloring.

The most picturesque feature of this huge forest is the Natural Bridge formed by a tree which is now a solid mass of richly colored agate. It is eight miles from the old National Trail and presents a striking example of erosion. The bridge spans the head of a short ravine for about fifty feet. The total length of the exposed tree is more than one hundred feet. The upper portion and the root of the petrified tree rest in the mesa sandstone while the central portion of the supporting rock and earth have been washed away. To preserve the tree in its natural state as a bridge, the Government engineers built, several years ago, a cement retaining span on the under portion of the tree intended to prevent the bridge from breaking when the chasm is widened by the action of the elements. Piers support it at either end. The canyon at present is a little more than twenty feet below the tree.

The forest contains four distinct areas, covering approximately sixty square miles. In no place are there any standing logs. There are many continuous log sections, split across in irregular lengths, varying from a foot to eight and ten foot sections. They give the appearance of having been deliberately felled and sawn in varying lengths. In the first and fourth forest areas all of these petrified tree sections are separated and scattered in wild confusion. They show brilliant colorings, including gorgeous purples, reds, yellows and a remarkable variety of shades toning down to most delicate tints.

The trees are remnants of pines of a species now extinct and perhaps millions of years ago they grew in stately profusion on the mountain sides. The theory has been advanced that they were doubtless uprooted and carried away in an immense flood, remaining for years in a great lake until silification took place. Deposits of copper, iron and manganese washed into the lake and colored it and the silica in the alkaline water became soluble and highly colored.

The wood molecules of the trees gradually decayed and were carried away and in their places were left deposits of richly colored solid silica. Then came the period of the drying up of the lake followed by the so-called uplift period which gave birth to the Rocky Mountains and the Grand Canyon of the Colorado. The petrified forest area, in this upheaval, was thrown up and exposed to view as now seen, in solid stone, split in many sections and lying in irregular fashion as the trees originally floated around in the extinct lake.

The Credit System In Shanghai

THERE are probably few places in the world with any claim to progress in which there are so many vagaries and anomalies as the International Settlement of Shanghai. Our main roads and streets, for example, are not infrequently cut up, then closed, and opened up again, and thus the merry game goes on year in and year out. Then, again, some of our roads are well watered during the arid months of summer, some are inadequately watered and some do not appear to be watered at all. Whether this is due to misplaced economy we know not, but it is tolerably certain that insufficiently watered streets cannot fail to undo the excellent work of the Health Department in the matter of protecting the public health, since the dust that finds its way into our eyes, throat and nose cannot be particularly beneficial to our health, as every doctor will tell you. We have a Public Band which is supposed to furnish us during the dull summer months with oracular delight, but the funereal notes produced by the instruments, when they are ostensibly engaged in interpreting jazz music, have a somnolent effect on not a few persons. Members of the local Volunteer Corps will bear us out as to the soporific attributes of the well-meaning bandsmen and their instruments in connection with annual parades and similar functions. Our landlords, or at any rate some of them, effect steady increases of rentals, but, mirabile dictu, they do not feel called upon to effect requisite repairs in respect of their property. We have household servants who are not municipally registered, who consequently are a law unto themselves and who more or less do just as they please. And last, but not least, there are Chinese shopkeepers who, when an armed robbery has been committed on their premises, are overcome by such a singular species of mental and physical paralysis that they are only enabled to give the alarm when the miscreants have escaped, after the manner of the individual who locks the stable door after the horse has bolted.

The foregoing, then, are some of the vagaries which are part and parcel of life in the International Settlement of Shanghai. But there is an anomaly greater than one of the vagaries above enumerated, and that is the credit system which enables people to obtain goods who have no right to secure credit. A case has just been concluded in the British Police Court which furnishes the most powerful argument against the system of credit prevailing in the Settlement. This ill-advised system is nothing less than a direct incentive to fraud on the part of those who live on their wits—and there are always a few of this type of person to be found in most parts of the world. None will question the justice of the sentence inflicted on Norman W. Bowler by Magistrate King. One cannot help, however, feeling a little sorry for a young man with admittedly good address who could so far have forgotten the traditions of his race as to lower the white man's prestige in the eyes of the Chinese, even though for a moment only. The case of Bowler is unquestionably a pronounced example of deliberate dishonesty. What is one to think of a foreigner who makes the round of the shops obtaining goods under false pretences, well knowing that there is no possible chance of paying for them, and, to add to the gravity of the offence, actually pawns the goods and makes use of the proceeds of the fraudulent sales? The reason Bowler gave for pawning the goods obtained by him on credit was that he wanted some money, and he went on to suggest that just because he got goods on credit and pawned them, it did not necessarily follow that he never intended to pay for them. It is a curious line of reasoning and would seem tantamount to the attitude taken by those who appropriate other people's money or goods on the plea: "The world owes me a living."

But if Bowler has merited the prison term on which he has just embarked, those whom he defrauded are not altogether beyond criticism. Bowler, in the course of his defence, argued that it was exceedingly easy to obtain credit in Shanghai. It might be a pity, he averred, but the fact remained that any Tom, Dick or Harry could obtain credit for the asking. "This being the general rule from Suez to Yokohama," Bowler pleaded that he failed to see how he could be convicted for having utilised it. Where else, except in Shanghai, is it possible for a stranger to obtain a Studebaker car and drive away in it without having paid one cent for it? The representative of the firm in question testified that Bowler called on a Saturday and asked if he might be allowed to take the car without paying the usual deposit, saying that he was putting through a deal and would pay in full on the following Wednesday. He said it was "some big Chinese business," but did not go into detail. The manager took it for granted that the money would be forthcoming on the Wednesday, and on the Magistrate significantly asking him why he took it for granted, the reply was: "Well, I took his word. The salesman told me he was a broker, and I let him have the car." In the case of another local store, Bowler succeeded in getting credit because, as the salesman testified, "he seemed a very capable and well spoken young gentleman . . . . . and he appeared to be a very intellectual young man."

Comment is superfluous. It is axiomatic that men are only honest in the absence of temptation. It is a rather relentless dictum, but it is nevertheless true in the case of the great majority of men. It is to be hoped that local stores, in their own interests and for their own self-protection, will discontinue the credit system and deal on a cash basis only. The present system is wrong, and, while doing the local tradesmen no good, only serve to get moral weaklings into trouble. And if, perchance, some day a subtler man than Bowler manages to drive away in a Studebaker without payment and is never seen or heard of again, is it likely that any public sympathy will be felt for the victimised firm in their loss? There is far too much credit allowed in Shanghai and there are a great many people who live on the border line year in and year out. The cash system and cheaper goods will be no disadvantage to the community, for it is an open secret that for every bad debt written off the books of a firm, the consumer pays in the end.

Modern Burglars And Highwaymen And Antiquated Business Methods

A FEW DAYS AGO A COOLIE, who probably receives a salary of ten or fifteen dollars a month, was sent from one bank on the Bund to another bank on the same street with a blue cloth bag in his hands containing the sum of $6,000 in bank notes. He was attacked by an armed robber and only by good fortune was the robber prevented from carrying out his designs by the early arrival of the police. The poor coolie who was entrusted with this small fortune was, of course, protected by the customary shop-guarantee, but Shanghai's strictly modern-style bandits care little for these things. They apparently know what they want and are applying the most approved direct methods in accomplishing these ends.

A few weeks ago we called attention in these columns to the primitive methods still being used in Shanghai in transporting treasure about the city. The apprenticed office boy nonchalantly strolling about the streets with his eyes on the shop signs and his mind farther afield and carrying in his hands negotiable documents worth hundreds and thousands of dollars, is still a familiar feature of our city. The sweating coolie with his wheelbarrow loaded with silver ingots is so commonplace that no one pays any attention except the wondering tourist and the traffic policeman.

A few years ago a Western banker newly arrived in Shanghai tried to talk Shanghai's financiers into the organisation of a modern clearing house, but Shanghai turned a deaf ear and lifted its eyebrows ever so slightly. This man had just come from New York, where robbers also apply direct methods, and he almost had a nervous breakdown one Sunday afternoon when he observed a crowd of coolies transporting several hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of silver bars from the Customs jetty to a bank several blocks distant—and doing it as carelessly as though the material had been pig iron—with not even a policeman in attendance.

It is one of the curious contrasts of the Orient, we suppose, to find in Shanghai, the most modern city in Asia, business men who follow the most ancient methods of doing business. And this does not apply entirely to Chinese business men; it also applies to foreigners equally as well. And in this same city there has developed in recent years a class of criminals who are just as desperate and resourceful as their kind in other lands. Whether their educations have come from the movies or whether they are a product of the situation of military-anarchy which obtains in interior China, we do not know. But they are here and the newspapers daily print the stories of their doings. Thus we have in Shanghai modern criminals and backward businessmen!

Obviously it is impossible for the municipalities to supply policemen to accompany every business man and clerk from his office to his club or favorite tea-house. A squad of policemen at every street corner apparently is not sufficient. Something else must be done, and that something every business man—foreign and Chinese—must work out for himself. It means a modernisation of methods of doing business, or, in other words, adopting safeguards to meet changed conditions. Surely it is tempting fate to send a ten or twenty-dollar clerk about the streets with large sums of money in these days of modern criminal practice. It is an insult to the robbers, for it does not credit them with the ingenuity which we know, through sad experience, that they possess.

THINGS TO THINK ON TO CURE THE BLUES

Here is a list of things for you to think on when you get the blues. They are but creature comforts, to be sure, but creature comforts have a certain pagan, non-moral power to soothe the soul, a peculiar power which neither religion nor philosophy possesses. Think, then, when the universe is all tangled, and you are aweary of the world, and life's problems are too much for you, and the isness of the is seems overshadowed by the wasness of the might-be—think on these things:

A chimney that draws well.
A lamp that does not smoke.
Real cream.
Sweet, perfect butter.
A fat book, containing a bully story, that will last a week.
A good bed waiting for you with open arms when you are sleepy and tired.
A spring of pure water.
A wood, in summer, with long grass, and a brook.
A new friend, who has never heard any of your jokes.
A woman whose face lights up when she sees you.
A man (if you're a woman) who likes you and is afraid of you.
Miraculously finding a twenty-dollar gold piece every time you put your hand in your pocket.
Owning a slave, your very own.
Shoes that don't hurt.
The power to enjoy all these things and not be ashamed of yourself.

Fishes Of Sahara Survive From Pre-Desert Period

Reports from Algeria that "small crabs, fish and shellfish" have been found by the French in water from artesian wells in the lower Sahara Desert are not, in the popular sense of the word, fish stories, according to local scientists.

"The existence of fish and other forms of life in the subterranean waters of the Sahara, as well as in other parts of the world, has long been a recognised fact," says Dr. E. W. Gudger, associate in ichthyology at the American Museum of Natural History. "The French found them when they first began to bore wells in the northern Sahara more than sixty years ago.

"It might be supposed that fish drawn up in this way from underground bodies of water would be blind, like those in the Mammoth Cave, or otherwise especially adapted to the conditions prevailing in their habitat. But this is not the case. The species found in these wells, at a depth of from two to three hundred feet below the surface of the ground, are identical with those found in the surface streams and ponds.

"Nor is that all. Some of these species of fish, apparently living far underground, are exactly the same as those still found in the waters of the Congo, the Niger, the Senegal, the Nile and the Jordan, and in Lake Tchad and Lake Tanganyika. Some of these are forms common to the whole of Northern Africa and Palestine.

"For example, there is a fish belonging to a group called cromids because of their high coloring, which occurs not only in African waters but in the river Jordan and the Sea of Galilee, and is distinguished by its peculiar habit of carrying its eggs in its mouth while they are hatching out. Other species are equally widely distributed.

"What does this mean? Simply that Syria and Palestine, as well as the greater part of Northern Africa, were, at a period not geologically remote, parts of a single great drainage system. These fish in the deep wells of Algeria, as well as in the dwindling surface waters, are the remnants of a much more numerous fish life which flourished when the climate of Northern Africa was wetter than it is at present and when the land connection between Syria and Egypt was much closer. Identical species are found over this vast area because the environment is similar and because individuals have been able to migrate along the waterways.

"When representatives of a species are broken up into geographic groups, with differing environments and without intercommunication, new species naturally tend to form. So we conclude that not only were these fishes formerly inhabitants of a single great water system, but that the drying-up process has been comparatively recent, geologically speaking.

"With this change went the formation of what has been called the Great Rift Valley, due to a series of gigantic fractures in the earth's crust running from Lake Nyassa in East Central Africa along the valley of the Nile and to the valley of the Jordan. These fractures allowed great blocks of land to drop below the surrounding levels, and of course destroyed the old river systems which formerly flowed across, thus forming many large lakes. Then, as the climate grew more arid, the lakes shrank in size and many of the old rivers either disappeared altogether or sank underground."

Dr. Gudger was asked how fish that had formerly lived near the surface had gone underground and why they had not developed characteristics differing from those of fish remaining near the surface.

"The French scientists," he said, "have gone into that point very thoroughly. Conspicuous among them are M. Georges Rolland and M. Edouard Blanc. Rolland was one of the first to observe that the underground species of fish, crabs and mollusks were identical with those found on the surface. He noticed that they were neither blind nor discolored, nor in any other way distinctively a subterranean fauna.

"This opinion was shared by M. Blanc. However, M. Blanc says this: 'These fish are extremely hungry and reduced to the utmost degree of famine they can endure. They are in general very thin.' He believed that the minute algae, small crustaceans and organic debris which might be found in the waters below the surface were not enough to keep the fish alive for any considerable length of time. He finally reached the conclusion that they must have some way of passing to and from the surface of the ground, not only through artificial wells but through natural connections.

"'A part of their existence is passed under the ground,' he wrote, 'but a part only. It is there, we believe, that breeding takes place, or at least it is there that the majority of the young fish which are destined to survive take shelter, the chances of destruction for those which develop in the exterior basins being so considerable that the probability of their survival is practically non-existent.' The fish have simply followed the water into the ground and taken advantage of it as a means of self-protection.

"In time these changed habits and environments will undoubtedly produce new species, but as far as we can tell that process has not yet begun. These fish at the bottom of the Saharan wells are still the unerased record of vast geologic and climatic changes."

Dr. Gudger does not believe that the interior of the Sahara was at any time completely covered by the ocean or by the waters of the Mediterranean. [illegible] there is evidence that lakes which formerly existed have vanished and that existing bodies of water of which the great [illegible] marshes at the base of the Atlas Mountains are examples, were once much larger.

Fantastic theories have been invented by modern travelers or have survived in ancient legends to account for the physical peculiarities of the Sahara. In 1875 Donald Mackenzie, a Scotch traveler, made an attempt to interest the English Government and commercial bodies in an ambitious project to make the Western Sahara an inland sea by cutting a channel through a belt of sand on the coast southeast of the Canary Islands.

It was Mackenzie's belief that a channel twelve miles long would be sufficient to let the waters of the Atlantic into the desert, and that it would then be possible for British vessels to travel from Liverpool or London nearly to Timbuctoo without discharging their cargoes.

Another project, more recently discussed, has been the cutting of a channel in the coast of the Gulf of Gabes, in Eastern Tunis, thus letting the waters of the Mediterraneau into a vast tract of desert south of the Atlas Mountains. According to L. M. Phillips, whose "In the Desert" was published a few years ago, the voyage of the Argonauts, in Grecian legend, must have been into a sea which once occupied this region. Shells, marks of erosion and old shore lines are said to prove the existence of this body of water.

Arabian tradition is that water was still abundant when the Arabs first entered the Sahara in the seventh century, and that the drying-up process was not completed until the thirteenth century.

Behind the drilling of the French artesian wells in Southern Algeria is, according to Phillips, the story of the slow, but usually peaceful, conquest of an old civilisation by a new. Until the coming of the French in the late 50s of the last century the wells of the Northern Sahara had all been painfully dug by hand, often with indifferent success. The first French wells, by good luck, were located in what is called the Oued Rir, where two of the Sahara's former rivers had once joined, and where much of the drainage from a tract of desert 700 miles long and from 300 to 400 miles broad still collected. The first artesian well, which began to flow in June, 1856, was regarded as miraculous by the natives.

As the drilling of wells progressed, new areas were added to cultivation and settled life in towns took the place of the old wandering existence for many inhabitants of the Sahara.

Thus the fish cast up by the wells of the Sahara have a political as well as a scientific significance, and perhaps throw light upon the future of the Sahara, as well as upon its historical and biological past.

DRESS

By Mary Marshall

One way of solving the problem of summer-time wraps is to have a different wrap for every frock in your wardrobe. This is an excellent plan for the few women who really don't have to consider a few thousand dollars more or less in their dress budgets.

Then there are the women who really are able to make smart clothes for themselves. More women think they can do this than really are able to. But there are, of course, women here and there who have real talent in making clothes, who wouldn't think of taking the work up as a profession, even when you tell them that English peeresses and Russian princesses have gone into dressmaking in England, and that more than one well-known American society woman has turned her talents to account in this way.

But these women are willing to make their own clothes, and for them the little wrap to go with each frock costs only the comparatively small sum that the additional material demands.

The sketch shows a frock of white crepe de chine recently imported from Callot of France. It has a smart cape to match in the same material embroidered in red and gold. This cape, so-called, really consists only of a square of the material at the back held at two corners by long scarf ends of the same material which hang to the knees in the front.

FASHION FLASHES

Very large colorless glass buttons are sewed on light sport coats with bright thread, red or green or purple. Some of the newest white crepe de chine blouses show rows of small colorless glass buttons by way of fastening at the front.

A little boutonniere embroidered in wools and chenille decorates the lapel of a smart navy blue wrap in place of the more usual detachable boutonniere of artificial silk flowers.

White crepe de chine frock has smart cape in same material embroidered in red and gold. This is a Callot model.

WISE AND OTHERWISE

TEA IN A BAG

There are some tea fans who insist that tea in a bag makes an inferior infusion of tea, and that the best tea is brewed when the tea leaves are put loose in the porcelain teapot. Perhaps. Still at practically all the best hotels and tearooms the tea is placed in the pots in little bags, and there are so many advantages in favor of this device that it is hard to consider their disadvantages.

And now some of the large grocers are selling tea in little bags for household use. Of course one pays a little more for tea in this way, but time and trouble are saved to make up for this slight expense. A tin of tea in bags containing one hundred bags may be bought for two dollars—two cents a bag—and from one bag three cups of full strength tea may be made. At that a cup of tea costs less than a cent. The advantages are, of course, that after the tea has remained in the teapot long enough to make the tea infusion of the desired strength—not more than five or six minutes for strong tea—the bag may be lifted out, thus preventing the tea infusion from becoming bitter. If a tea cosey is placed over the teapot it will remain piping hot for quite a time. Then there is the advantage to the one who must clear up after the tea party. There are no troublesome tea leaves to bother with. The teapot merely needs rinsing out with hot water.

Theory The Interpreter Of Truth

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS

I observe that a Western educator urges that attention be given in schools to "teaching boys and girls how to distinguish between theory and truth." Probably by condensing his idea into a sentence he has given it a trend that he did not intend.

A theory may be just as true as a fact. The object of theory is to ascertain and explain truth. It would be a mistake to instill in the minds of youth the notion that there is any conflict between theory and truth. The aim should rather be to teach them the real nature of theory.

All science may be said to rest upon theory. There could be no organisation of scientific knowledge without theory to bind facts into systems, and show how they are related by laws. A theory is a statement of human comprehension of a law of nature. It renders possible the foreseeing of natural events. Astronomers foretell eclipses by application of a theory of the planetary motions. This theory, like all others, is the product of reasoning upon observed facts and events which discloses the connections between them.

It is really only a theory that the sun will rise tomorrow morning. And that theory has been formed upon observation of the fact that the sun has always in the past, as far as record goes, risen in the manner in which we expect it to rise tomorrow. We cannot know, as a fact, that the sun has risen until we have seen it rise, but the theory that it will rise enables us to carry on human affairs as we could not do if we had no theory and no belief on the subject. If we waited to see the sun rise before believing that it would rise, where should we "be at?"

The part that theory plays in human life is so great as to constitute the chief distinction between the activities of man and those of the lower animals. In general, those creatures seem to have no theories, and live from hand to mouth and from day to day. The provision for the future which so many of them conspicuously make may be explained as the operation of laws of their being, of whose nature they possess no consciousness. These inherent tendencies, then, take the place of the theories with which intelligent observation, combined with higher reason, furnishes us.

You act upon the basis of theory every day of your life. In most cases you have forgotten, or have not noticed, that there is any theory concerned; but if you have not worked it out for yourself, you may be sure that someone has worked it out for you, perhaps thousands of years ago, and the gist of his reasoning has been handed down in the shape of a theory which we all instinctively follow.

Whenever an invention of any kind is made it is the result of theory. It comes from the reasoned belief that things will continue to act in the ways in which they have hitherto been known to act, even if you make certain alterations in the circumstances.

James Watt saw the lid of a tea kettl blown off by steam, and theory whispered in his ear the truth that steam could drive an engine. Thomas Edison believed, theoretically, that he could make an electric current heat a carbon filament to steady and brilliant incandescence; and again theory and truth shook hands. I could fill this whole page with similar instances.

Theory works in the same manner in the moral world. What we call moral certainly is theoretic certainty—based upon theory formed by reasoning on the observed connections of human actions.

Of course, there are false and mistaken theories, but they don't stand long. Instead of teaching youth to regard theory abstractly as something opposed to, or inconsistent with, truth, they should be taught that theory is truth's interpreter for all intelligences lower than Divinity.

Our Scottish Letter

a first-rate second-rate man, and that is the best anybody but himself can say about him."

Burns was a "Rhymster who wrote addresses to lice and haggisses and the toothache and Scotch drink whose "artlessness is still publicly advertised on his three sizes too big monument in the Thames Embankment Gardens."

These remarks serve but as a preliminary to the author's analysis of the faults and failings of the Scots which becomes more amusing as it goes on.

"You can see the Guid Conceiters (or Scotch) positively wriggling their well scratched bodies with joy when they read that: "They are savage enough. God knows. Yet, like the Scotchman who was born out of wedlock, they cannot abide the term that best befits them."

Glasgow is dealt with in a chapter "Glasgow, Moscow, and Revolution." A city of no special account, situated somewhere on Clydeside and chiefly noted for whisky—drinking, steak-tea and Football fanning propensities.

Mr. Crosland says there are 50,000 Scots "weaseling" in London but he does not believe they should be cleared out for—

"The Scotchman makes a fairly good servant when no other sort can be obtained." The thing to do with him is "to keep him in his place—which is with a brush and shovel behind a horse and never in the saddle."

The book ends up with an expression of piety—

"God save England! and to Bannockburn with the Weasels."

A truly entertaining volume!
